Airtight Blockade To Be Used Against British, Berlin Declares

BERLIN, Nov. 28 — Nazi Germany warned England today that her overwhelming naval successes of the last few weeks are "merely a sample" of what may be expected in the future.

Competent German quarters predicted that within two months an "absolutely airtight" Nazi blockade would be forged around England, forcing Britain to her knees "as no nation has ever been forced before."

The Nazi government made clear that Britain's decision to seize German exports as a measure of reprisal against German naval warfare would result in the Reich's own counter-measures being "redoubled and intensified."

"We shall fight with all means at our disposal until England has been forced to her knees in a manner that no power has ever been crushed before," a spokesman said.

Note to Enter, Leave

The point will soon be reached where no neutral ship will dare to enter an English harbor. Nor will any English ship be able to leave.

"We have the means and the implements to carry out the tightest blockade ever effected in history.

"Since England will not fight and means only to starve out the Reich, we shall turn the tables upon them."

The German press again lent partial confirmation to British reports of extensive Nazi minelaying in British waters. The Hamburger Tageblatt boasted of these measures under a headline reading:

"German mine war becomes more effective daily."

It was confirmed in Berlin that Sweden had protested to Germany against the placing of mines in Swedish waters. There was no indication as to the government's reaction.

Deutschland May Still Be In Zone After Sending Rawalpindi Down

BIG CRAFT BEING USED

Swiss Lose Liner Helena In Channel; German Mine Blamed

BERLIN, Nov. 28 — Nazi Germany claimed another major victory for her submarine fleet today, reporting that Lieut. Commander Gunther Prien, the young U-boat captain who sent the battleship Royal Oak to the bottom in Scapa Flow, had torpedoed and sunk a 10,000-ton British cruiser of the London class east of the Shetland Islands.

Which of the four modern cruisers of the London class was destroyed was not disclosed. The announcement apparently was based on a terse message from Prien himself.

London, Nov. 28 — British naval vessels armed with mighty 15 and 16-inch guns combed Arctic waters today in a grim search for the German pocket battleship Deutschland, which sank the armed British merchant cruiser Rawalpindi with a loss of some 300 lives southeast of Iceland.

British naval circles in London said they believed the Deutschland was attempting to make its way to a German port, thereby precipitating the first major naval encounter of the war.

The British vessel, formerly a crack luxury liner, was sent to the bottom Thursday after an unequal struggle against the 11-inch guns of the speedy German warship.

Authoritative circles expressed the opinion that the Deutschland is still in the Arctic attempting to elude the intensive British search which got under way the moment news of the Rawalpindi encounter reached London.

There was some speculation that the Deutschland might be compelled to run to Murmansk, Russia, if the chase becomes too hot.

Competent naval quarters scouted reports that British planes were hunting for the Deutschland. They said terrific gales and limited visibility in the area where the Deutschland is believed to be would make use of planes impractical.

Strong Vessels Few

Naval circles pointed out, perhaps significantly, that the only vessels possessed by the Allies armed sufficiently and capable of enough speed to overtake and sink the Deutschland are Britain's mighty battle cruiser Hood, the 32,000-ton battle cruisers Renown and Repulse, and the speedy French battle ships Dunkerque and Strasbourg.

Meanwhile, it was learned that some of the Rawalpindi's few survivors were landed at a British west coast port last night after being picked up from the rough, icy waters off Iceland.

A second German vessel which aided the Deutschland in sinking the Rawalpindi was believed to have been the cruiser Emden, namesake of the famous German World War raider.

Swiss Suffer Loss

Switzerland, meanwhile, suffered her first maritime casualty of the war when the 5,260-ton steamer Helena, the former Helene Kulukundis, one of nine Greek ships chartered by a Swiss Transport Company, was reported to have struck a mine and sunk in the English Channel off the French coast. Casualties were not immediately known.

National Allotments To Be Broken Down Into Data For Individuals

Pickaway County wheat and corn farmers who participate in the government's agricultural conservation program were waiting Tuesday for definite information concerning acreage in the 1940 program. The Agricultural Adjustment Administration has set national acreage goals for principal crops and has announced rates of payments to farmers who participate. The national allotments will be broken down into state and county and then into individual acreages.

Wilbur Brinker of Walnut Township, a member of the county agricultural conservation committee, and Paul Matthaeus, its secretary, were in Columbus Tuesday participating in a two-day state meeting on administration of the 1940 program. Whether they will be provided with any additional information concerning the 1940 allotment is not known.

Federal officials said the 1940 program is aimed to encourage use of practice "which normally are not carried out on a large number of farms." They said the new program also "increases the opportunities for participation by small farms."

Acres Compared

The total acreage permitted for all soil-depleting crops is 270 million to 285 million, the same as in 1939. Wheat for 1940 will be 5,000,000 acres ahead of 1939's total acreage under the new program, while corn will be reduced by about 6,000,000 acres. The latter reduction is expected to directly affect each corn planter.

GOV. DICKINSON
DEFENDS POLICY
ON LABOR FRONT

LANSING, Mich., Nov. 28 — With biting sarcasm, Governor Luren D. Dickinson said today he will appeal to Congressman Clare E. Hoffman (R) for aid in Michigan's labor troubles only after he is convinced that he can no longer afford Divine guidance.

The governor was irritated by Hoffman's criticism of the state's attitude toward the Chrysler Corporation production tie up, a criticism in which Hoffman hinted the 80-year-old governor relied too much on Divine aid.

Wrote the governor:

"We have asked for Divine wisdom and direction and we believe this is a help."

"God may have made some mistakes, but we are going on at least for some time using all that is at our command humanly and divinely to trust His wisdom continually along these same lines."

"If we see it is then unwise to follow this course, we may then appeal to you for something better."

The governor then became fatherly, writing:

"Now my dear Clare, if you had followed more closely the things we have said and done here in Lansing this year about labor troubles you would not write such a letter. Perhaps you have been too busy to take time to find out about them."

HIT-SKIP WITH SLIMMEST CLUE

CLEVELAND, Nov. 28 — Police persistence in tracking down the slim clues of a wire radiator grill, two grill clips and a piece of glass, which had brought them a confession to the hit-skip killing of seven-year-old Roger Krull Sunday.

Police said that a 15-year-old boy, who identified himself as Donald Hartlick, signed a statement that he was the driver of the automobile which struck and killed Roger as he crossed the street near his home. They said his confession was given as Paul E. Beck, operator of the East Cleveland police department's lie detector, prepared to give him tests with the apparatus.

The youth said the Krull boy ran in front of his car and that he was unable to stop in time to avoid hitting him, according to Sergeant Edward Polence. He slowed down but did not stop after the accident, continuing on to his father's home, police said.

LONDON, Nov. 28 — Expressing confidence that British military forces will be equal to their tasks in war, King George VI warned today that Parliament will be asked to make further financial provisions for conducting the conflict.

The king delivered his remarks in a speech reopening Parliament.

He attended Parliament personally and read his own speech, which consisted of less than 200 words, the shortest delivered at such a function since 1918.

"Prosecution of the war," he said, "commands the energies of all my subjects."

"Throughout the world my nannies . . . are keeping free open highways."

"At home, in France and overseas my armies and air forces are fulfilling their tasks. I am well assured they will be equal to any efforts and sacrifices to which they may be called..."

"You will be asked to make further financial provision for conduct of the war. The measures which will be submitted to you are for the welfare of my people and the attainment of the purpose on which all our efforts are set."

The opening in the House of Lords was shorn of its usual brilliance. No robes were worn and the usual peace-time ceremonies were reduced to a minimum.

The king in a naval uniform drove to Parliament in an automobile instead of in the state coach. He was accompanied by Queen Elizabeth. The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester and the Duke and Duchess of Kent also attended.

United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy was in the diplomatic box.

The municipal disposal plant and its operation and charges were discussed and submitted to a committee.

FAILURE OF BIG CITIES TO HELP NEEDY ASSAILED

Cleveland And Toledo Not Adhering To Law, Says State Spokesman

EDITORS IN COLUMBUS

Metropolitan Leaders Wait For Conference With Gov. Bricker

COLUMBUS, Nov. 28—Editors of Ohio's metropolitan newspapers came to the capital with "open minds" today to discuss with Governor Bricker possible solutions of pressing relief problems in industrial areas.

As they met here at the invitation of the governor, the responsibility for relief difficulties was laid directly in the laps of municipal administrations by B. D. Lecklider, president of the Inter-Organization Conference.

"The state has met its responsibilities under the relief laws enacted last Spring," declared Lecklider, frowning on proposals from Cleveland and Toledo, the two cities hardest hit by relief crises, for a special session of the legislature.

"It appears to members of the Inter-Organization Conference," he continued, "that some cities have shown apathy, that they have not put their houses in order, and that the administrations of these cities have been far from aggressive in attempting to make local funds available."

Demands Considered

Lecklider's statement followed a meeting of Ohio business representatives called to consider demands of Cleveland and Toledo officials for a special session of the general assembly to appropriate additional state money for relief.

Cleveland was singled out by Lecklider as a "notable example" of metropolitan cities failing to make a "sincere effort" to raise relief funds locally.

"It has not submitted a 1.5 mill levy as authorized by Senate Bill No. 4, which would yield over $1,000,000," he declared. "Cleveland has not made use of the auto license diversion act, nor has it made any effort to collect delinquent taxes amounting to many millions of dollars which could be applied to relief."

The speaker charged that municipalities now clamoring for additional state aid have found funds to create many new jobs, increase of salaries of their employees and expand operating expenses.

Views Withheld

In advance of their noon luncheon meeting with Bricker, most of the editors invited here to express their views on solving the relief problem were reluctant to discuss them, preferring to hear first what the governor had to say.

GRIFFITH HOLDS UP DECISION ON ROSS VOTE CASE

COLUMBUS, Nov. 28—Secretary of State Earl Griffith today had decided one Nov. 7 election dispute, but reserved decision on another involving the auditorship of Chillicothe.

Griffith counted two ballots previously disputed in ruling that E. A. Schwinke, Republican, was elected mayor of Oak Hill, Jackson County, defeating Democratic candidate Roscoe Kern.

The secretary made no ruling in the Chillicothe dispute, in which a recount showed the election of Democrat Louis Hibbler by one vote. Hibbler had been defeated in the official count by Ira M. Korst, Republican.

FAILURE OF BIG CITIES TO HELP NEEDY ASSAILED

Cleveland And Toledo Not Adhering To Law, Says State Spokesman

EDITORS IN COLUMBUS

Metropolitan Leaders Wait For Conference With Gov. Bricker

COLUMBUS, Nov. 28—Editors of Ohio's metropolitan newspapers came to the capital with "open minds" today to discuss with Governor Bricker possible solutions of pressing relief problems in industrial areas.

As they met here at the invitation of the governor, the responsibility for relief difficulties was laid directly in the laps of municipal administrations by B. D. Lecklider, president of the Inter-Organization Conference.

"The state has met its responsibilities under the relief laws enacted last Spring," declared Lecklider, frowning on proposals from Cleveland and Toledo, the two cities hardest hit by relief crises, for a special session of the legislature.

"It appears to members of the Inter - Organization Conference," he continued, "that some cities have shown apathy, that they have not put their houses in order, and that the administrations of these cities have been far from aggressive in attempting to make local funds available."

Demands Considered

Lecklider's statement followed a meeting of Ohio business representatives called to consider demands of Cleveland and Toledo officials for a special session of the general assembly to appropriate additional state money for relief.

Cleveland was singled out by Lecklider as a "notable example" of metropolitan cities failing to make a "sincere effort" to raise relief funds locally.

"It has not submitted a 1.5 mill levy as authorized by Senate Bill No. 4, which would yield over $1,000,000," he declared. "Cleveland has not made use of the auto license diversion act, nor has it made any effort to collect delinquent taxes amounting to many millions of dollars which could be applied to relief."

The speaker charged that municipalities now clamoring for additional state aid have found funds to create many new jobs, increase of salaries of their employees and expand operating expenses.

Views Withheld

and Ready for MORE!

A SWIFT upsurge in the nation's commerce . . . a sudden demand upon the railroads to handle an unprecedented increase in freight traffic. Could they move the huge, growing volume of products flowing from mill, mine, forest and field? That was the question three months ago.

The railroads and the great army of railway employees swung into action. They opened the throttle . . . the traffic rolled—smoothly, efficiently, promptly. And that was the answer.

Always "preparing today for the traffic of tomorrow," the Norfolk and Western Railway was ready. Mines and factories—hundreds of them along the railroad's lines—shifted to high gear. Traffic mounted. Five times in a few short weeks, the N. & W. was called upon to provide more equipment and service to move peak volumes of business.

In October, 5,329 carloads of revenue freight were loaded on this railroad in a single day—an all-time record, and a 56 per cent increase over the average day of three months before. In October, the N. & W. loaded more coal in one day—4,255 cars; more in one week—22,706 cars, and more in one month—97,140 cars, than in any like periods in its history.

Thus, the tremendous demands made upon the railway and its employees have been met without car shortage, delay, or congestion. An achievement made possible by an experienced, loyal personnel; by cooperation of shippers and receivers, and by the railway's policy of expanding and improving its facilities and services in boom times and in depression. Today, the Norfolk and Western is rolling—and ready for more—with plenty of capacity in reserve.

Again, the Norfolk and Western Railway, and the other railroads of the country, have proven conclusively that they can do the nation's transportation job better than any other agency—no matter what may come—and that they are vital to the economic progress and welfare of America.

WHEAT AND CORN CROP ACREAGES FIXED FOR 1940

Rates For Payments During Next Year Figured By Federal AAA

Rates which conservation payments will be made to farmers who grow crops to which farm allotments apply are: corn, per bushel, 10 cents in 1940, one cent ahead of 1939; wheat, per bushel, nine cents in 1940, compared with 17 cents in 1939; potatoes, per bushel, three cents in 1940, the same as in 1939.

Officials pointed out that all rates are subject to revision by 10 percent, upward or downward, as adjustment for participation when final payments are made.

With the new program, according to R. M. Evans, administrator of the AAA, "farmers are prepared as never before to meet the shocks imposed by war in Europe and further demoralization of world trade."

"They have in the program," he added, "a means of avoiding costly maladjustments such as resulted from the World War."

SCANDINAVIANS DECLINE ORDERS TO MOVE ARMY

Note Sent To Moscow By Small Nation Denies Frontier Incident

Leaves Cancelled

A report received in Stockholm from Moscow said that all military leaves had been cancelled in the Leningrad military district near the Soviet-Finnish border and that all personnel of the Russian Baltic fleet had been ordered to duty.

(The reports also stated a huge number of Russian bombers and pursuit planes participated in "enormous" aerial maneuvers over the Leningrad district, and that agents of the OGPU (Soviet secret police) were keeping the Finnish legation in Moscow under strict guard.)

Finland's reply to the stern Russian note which demanded withdrawal of the Finnish troops from the frontier stated flatly that a Finnish investigation showed there had been no shooting on the Finnish side of the border, as charged by Russia.

It added, however, that seven cannon shots were heard on the Russian side of the border, thereby plainly implying that the shots originated in Soviet territory.

RELIEF CLIENTS TOLD TO WORK OR LOSE HELP

COLUMBUS, Nov. 28 — An order for able-bodied Franklin County relief clients to work or be cut from the rolls was to go into effect today.

The action was taken by county commissioners after it was disclosed at a hearing that only 70 percent of those certified as able to work reported for duty at county work relief projects. It was suggested at the meeting that able-bodied relief clients with children who failed to report for work be taken into juvenile court on a charge of failing to provide for their children.

MORAN, ANOTHER CHICAGO GANG LORD, IS JAILED

CHICAGO, Nov. 28—George "Bugs" Moran, one of Chicago's most publicized prohibition era figures, today began serving a one year sentence in county jail on a conviction for conspiracy in a $62,000 travelers' check forgery scheme.

It was reported that Moran, once reputed wealthy, had no money to finance an appeal.

Moran was convicted by a jury last May with Frankie Parker, once called the "airplane boot-legger." Moran was freed under $35,000 bond pending an appeal, and yesterday the time limit of the bond expired. Criminal Court Judge James F. Farley then issued the mittimus for Moran's commitment to jail.

Parker, who was sentenced to one year in jail, will begin serving the term when he completes a two-year federal prison sentence for his conviction in another case involving counterfeiting of $20 bills.

DR. J. NAISMITH OF CAGE GAME FAME IS DEAD

LAWRENCE, Kans., Nov. 28—Dr. James A. Naismith, inventor of basketball, died early today at the age of 78. His last illness started with a cerebral hemorrhage, followed by heart attacks.

Forty-eight years ago Dr. Naismith invented basketball at the Springfield, Mass., YMCA, to fill need for winter sports. The equipment was a ball and two old peach baskets. The sport spread around the world and in 1936 was played at the Olympic games in Berlin, with Dr. Naismith in the audience.

Born November 6, 1861, at Almonte, Ontario, Dr. Naismith was an orphan at the age of eight years. His A. B. degree was earned in McGill College, Montreal, and a few years later he obtained the degree of Master of Physical Education from the YMCA college in Springfield, Mass. His degree in medicine came from Colorado University in 1898. Later he studied for the ministry, but never preached. Neither did he practice medicine.

His entire work was devoted to physical education. He came to the University of Kansas in 1898, and taught actively until 1937. Among his many writings was a book entitled "The Basis of Clean Living," which set forth his creed.

The doctor's first wife, whom he married in 1893, died in 1937. A few months ago he married Mrs. Florence Kincaid, for many years a house-mother for Sigma Phi Epsilon at Kansas University. She, two sons and three daughters survive.

OHIO COUNTIES DUPED IN FAKE PAYROLL CRISIS ESTATE RACKET IN NEXT MONTH

COLUMBUS, Nov. 28—Duped by a man who represented himself as an attorney for persons supposedly dead or missing, county officials were swindled of between $15,000 and $20,000 in 1937 and 1938, State Auditor Joseph Ferguson disclosed today.

Operating in several counties, the swindler alleged in each instance gave the name of H. J. Rundt, Ferguson said. He was last heard from in February of this year. At one time, he was held by Licking County officials but was released.

The speculations were only recently discovered because state examiners had not scrutinized 1937-38 accounts until the past few months. They became suspicious when Rundt's name appeared on the records of at least seven counties including Wayne, Licking, Miami, Auglaize, Lucas, Gallia and Ross.

Investigation revealed that the man, working occasionally with an accomplice, singled out unclaimed cash paid into treasures years ago. Forging powers of attorney, he requested payment on behalf of his non-existent clients. Each time, unsuspecting officials were willing to accept without question his claim.

The illegal transactions were kept secret temporarily by examiners in the hope Rundt would be apprehended. In some cases, examiners revealed, he was given access to records and altered upward amounts due the mythical clients.

COLUMBUS SEES PAYROLL CRISIS IN NEXT MONTH

COLUMBUS, Nov. 28—Prospects of a payless December faced Columbus police, firemen and other city employees today because of a $200,000 deficit in the city's general fund.

The fund will be exhausted by payment of November payrolls, City Auditor T. Blain Halloway reported, and there are no prospects of any additional revenue. Furthermore, Halloway said, the payless period for the employees may extend into January and February, first two months of the incoming administration of Mayor-elect Floyd F. Green.

Halloway attributed the crisis to the burden of direct relief which, he said, has drawn heavily on the general fund throughout the year.

WHEAT AND CORN CROP ACREAGES FIXED FOR 1940

Rates For Payments During Next Year Figured By Federal AAA

Rates which conservation payments will be made to farmers who grow crops to which farm allotments apply are: corn, per bushel, 10 cents in 1940, one cent ahead of 1939; wheat, per bushel, nine cents in 1940, compared with 17 cents in 1939; potatoes, per bushel, three cents in 1940, the same as in 1939.

Officials pointed out that all rates are subject to revision by 10 percent, upward or downward, as adjustment for participation when final payments are made.

With the new program, according to R. M. Evans, administrator of the AAA, "farmers are prepared as never before to meet the shocks imposed by war in Europe and further demoralization of world trade."

"They have in the program," he added, "a means of avoiding costly maladjustments such as resulted from the World War."

Leaves Cancelled

A report received in Stockholm from Moscow said that all military leaves had been cancelled in the Leningrad military district near the Soviet Finnish border and that all personnel of the Russian Baltic fleet had been ordered to duty.

The reports also stated a huge number of Russian bombers and pursuit planes participated in "enormous" aerial maneuvers over the Leningrad district, and that agents of the OGPU (Soviet secret police) were keeping the Finnish legation in Moscow under strict guard.

Finland's reply to the stern Russian note which demanded withdrawal of the Finnish troops from the frontier stated flatly that a Finnish investigation showed there had been no shooting on the Finnish side of the border, as charged by Russia.

It added, however, that seven cannon shots were heard on the Russian side of the border, thereby implying that the shots originated in Soviet territory.

ATTEMPT TO END MAVERICK CASE BEING DEBATED

COLUMBUS, Nov. 28 — An order for able-bodied Franklin County relief clients to work or be cut from the rolls was to go into effect today.

The action was taken by county commissioners after it was disclosed at a hearing that only 70 percent of those certified as being able to work reported for duty at county work relief projects. It was suggested at the meeting that able-bodied relief clients with children who failed to report for work be taken into juvenile court on a charge of failing to provide for their children.

MORAN, ANOTHER CHICAGO GANG LORD, IS JAILED

CHICAGO, Nov. 28—George "Bugs" Moran, one of Chicago's most publicized prohibition era figures, today began serving a one year sentence in county jail on a conviction for conspiracy in a $62,000 travelers' check forgery scheme.

It was reported that Moran, once reputed wealthy, had no money to finance an appeal.

Moran was convicted by a jury last May with Frankie Parker, once called the "airplane boot-legger." Moran was freed under $35,000 bond pending an appeal, and yesterday the time limit of the bond expired. Criminal Court Judge James F. Farley then issued the mittimus for Moran's commitment to jail.

Parker, who also was sentenced to one year in jail, will begin serving the term when he completes a two-year federal prison sentence for his conviction in another case involving counterfeiting of $20 bills.

DR. J. NAISMITH OF CAGE GAME FAME IS DEAD

LAWRENCE, Kans., Nov. 28—Dr. James A. Naismith, inventor of basketball, died early today at the age of 78. His last illness started with a cerebral hemorrhage, followed by heart attacks.

Forty-eight years ago Dr. Naismith invented basketball at the Springfield, Mass., YMCA, to fill a need for winter sports. The equipment was a ball and two old peach baskets. The sport spread around the world and in 1936 was played at the Olympic games in Berlin, with Dr. Naismith in the audience.

Steve Thuranski, Lithopolis, forfeited a $50 bond in police court Monday night by failure to report at 7:30 o'clock on a charge of participating in the "numbers" game.

BORN November 6, 1861, at Almonte, Ontario, Dr. Naismith was an orphan at the age of eight years. His A. B. degree was earned in McGill College, Montreal, and a few years later he obtained the degree of Master of Physical Education from the YMCA college in Springfield, Mass. His degree in medicine came from Colorado University in 1898. Later he studied for the ministry, but never preached. Neither did he practice medicine.

His entire work was devoted to physical education. He came to the University of Kansas in 1898, and taught actively until 1937.

Among his many writings was a book entitled "The Basis of Clean Living," which set forth his creed.

CHRISTMAS BUYING

"THE Thanksgiving question aside," says a business commentator, "the Christmas business of 1939 may very well be the best of the decade. With the exception of 1936, it is the only Christmas season in ten years which climaxes a generally good business year and follows hard on a very rapid acceleration of industrial activity."

Merchants are especially hopeful now, he says, because the increased industrial activity and employment have hardly been reflected yet in the retail market. If the President's theory that people have been using their new earnings to pay old bills is correct, the retail distributors will soon be getting their share, especially in the Christmas buying.

PERSONAL TRAFFIC LIGHTS

A NEW kind of traffic light arrangement, a more personal and flexible than the usual street crossing lights, is coming into use in some places. It is meant especially for the convenience of pedestrians and is operated by them. A representative of the Automobile Club of New York explains it as follows.

"Traffic lights of this type are in use near schools, factories, sports arenas and parks in many outlying suburban areas. A button pressed by the pedestrian changes the signal in the walker's favor, after which the signal automatically returns to vehicle control."

Obviously such a device can be very useful in a situation where pedestrians are crossing more frequently than motor cars. Fairly operated, it should not only make crossing safer for pedestrians but should save them a good deal of time. The arrangement, however, assumes that people afoot will treat motor traffic fairly and not turn the light against approaching cars just for the fun of it. It may take time to learn that.

FARM FORESTRY

THE National Grange wants more trees. At its recent 71st annual convention special consideration was given conservation of the nation's forests, soil, water-sheds and wild life. Particular emphasis was put on a proposal for voluntary leasing arrangements between private landowners and the Department of Agriculture, whereby lands not suited to cultivation would be used for timber production. They discussed also a permanent Prairie States forestry project and speedier conversion of submarginal farm lands into state or national forests.

Farmers whose forebears cut down the forests to make way for cultivation have been slow to give up the idea that the

Picked up the morning prints and there were glaring headlines dealing with what Russia says is the threat of Finland to the Soviet Bear. Bah! That should make even the unthinking sick. Russia is a fine example of the totalitarian state. First those in power take everything away from their countrymen and when they are bled white they seek others to bleed. That is what Russia has in mind in Finland. Italy did the same thing. Germany and Japan, too. Nice people, I don't think.

That war over in Europe seems to be going against the Allies, but one should bear in mind that while England loses battles she never loses a war. Germany's number is up.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN,

McNUTT COURTS TRUSTERS

WASHINGTON—Most stupendous cocktail party ever held in Washington was staged by Paul McNutt, then the newly appointed High Commissioner to the Philippines, and would-be President of the United States. That cocktail party was the most daring piece of political showmanship ever staged in Washington and now, two years later, long-headed political strategists still are debating the wisdom of it.

Whether wise or not, all agree that the strategy of Paul McNutt today has changed. Furthermore, all agree that he of the platinum-hair has made more progress toward the Democratic nomination than any other candidate in the stable.

McNutt's strategy today is subtle, steady and successful. In the first place, he has been doing a good job as Federal Security Administrator. Second, he has visited with small groups of key political leaders in important States. Finally, he has made a strong bid for the inner New Deal circle.

This last move is especially significant. When first appointed Security Administrator, the Brain Trusters were openly hostile toward McNutt. Now they are thawing out.

In fact, some of his speeches have all the earmarks of being inspired, if not actually written by potent New Deal advisers. Obviously they are written with the idea of laying low the previous reputation that McNutt was conservative and dictatorial.

NOTE—A recent McNutt speech before the Washington unit of the National Lawyers' Guild was a ringing defense of civil liberties.

WENDELL WILLKIE

But while McNutt has been busy courting New Dealers, he hasn't neglected the other side of the political fence. One of his strong supporters is Wendell Willkie, head of Commonwealth and Southern, and the No. 1 foe of Rooseveltian power policies.

Willkie was a classmate of McNutt's at Indiana University, and they have been close friends for years. Neither, however, is advertising the fact that McNutt has Willkie's backing. When the two men were in Cleveland on the same day last week, newspapers playfully speculated that Willkie might run for President himself.

Asked what he thought of General Johnson's nomination of Willkie for President, Willkie replied: "It's the best offer I've had yet."

Privately, Willkie says, with a grin: "Yes, sir! I'm for McNutt, but I'm not saying so for fear it might hurt him."

"TELL BILL GOODBYE"

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:
FABIENNE SEYMOUR, rich, young and beautiful.
NICKY BARTLETT, wealthy and in love with Fabienne.
ELLEN CHARLES, young and capable maid of Willoughby house.
DR. BILL MALLORY, close friend of Ellen's.

YESTERDAY: Attracted by Bill Mallory, but afraid of hurting Ellen, Fabienne suddenly leaves Willoughby house after three months, having won her bet with Nicky.

CHAPTER TEN

GERTRUDA, Comtesse de Ligne, maintained a nine-room apartment in New York and a small house in Paris, both rather handsome mansions. But it was Willoughby hall, old and white and gracious as the beauty of the belle who had come to it as a bride, nestling in a Maryland valley twenty miles from Baltimore, that was home to Gertrude's daughter, Fabienne Seymour.

It had not always been known as Willoughby hall. It was Carl Seymour who had left it to Mark and Edna Willoughby—having nothing else to leave to his brother and sister-in-law who had been father and mother to his children after his divorce from Gertrude Willoughby, who had cared less for her children than the glitter of European society. It was his one gesture to leave the security of a home to his children.

Richard Seymour had built it for his bride, lovely, spirited Fabienne de Courcy, who came from France to attend a ball in New Orleans and never returned to her native land. They had met and married a decade before the Civil War. None of her dark beauty, but all of her love for the hall, and her spirit, she had left to find its clear trace in her granddaughter.

The room that had been Fabienne's since she could remember had been the bridal chamber of that first Fabienne. Its walls were hung with the now-faded hand-woven silk that had been brought from France. The painted fire screen, the long oval mirror, the flowered carpet and the spindle-legged chairs that once had served Fabienne de Courcy, were tributes to her grace and femininity.

Lying on the big bed with its headboard of tufted satin, Fabienne Seymour, on that first morning of her return to Maryland, let her eyes sweep lazily over the room and was aware for the first time that it no longer seemed like HER room. It was the room of another woman—a belle. But was not she, Fabienne, a belle?

She arrived at dinner time the evening before and already the invitations had come by telephone and messenger. "Yes, yes," she had said to them all. The invitation to the Hunt ball, the Bachelor's dance, the Hallowell and Jackson parties. "Yes, I'd love to!" To ride with Tom and Jane and Nicky, to tea with young masters at the school that Uncle Mark headed.

She was, and she intended to continue, being a belle. Those three months of service in New York would mean nothing to her. No more than they should mean. She'd done it merely to prove to herself that she could. She'd done it and now she would go back to being what she really was. True, she was no longer a rich girl who could send her bills to her great grandfather. But she had enough money to live pleasantly. She'd always have this home with Uncle Mark and Aunt Edna. Gertrude would finance a trip to Europe if she wanted one. And when she wished to marry, there was Nicky waiting for her. And days of grace and comfortable policies.

Willkie was a classmate of McNutt's at Indiana University, and they have been close friends for years. Neither, however, is advertising the fact that McNutt has Willkie's backing. When the two men were in Cleveland on the same day last week, newspapers playfully speculated that Willkie might run for President himself.

is correct, the retail distributors will soon be getting their share, especially in the Christmas buying.

PERSONAL TRAFFIC LIGHTS

A NEW kind of traffic light arrangement, more personal and flexible than the usual street crossing lights, is coming into use in some places. It is meant especially for the convenience of pedestrians and is operated by them. A representative of the Automobile Club of New York explains it as follows.

"Traffic lights of this type are in use near schools, factories, sports arenas and parks in many outlying suburban areas.
A button pressed by the pedestrian changes the signal in the walker's favor, after which the signal automatically returns to vehicle control."

Obviously such a device can be very useful in a situation where pedestrians are crossing more frequently than motor cars. Fairly operated, it should not only make crossing safer for pedestrians but should save them a good deal of time.
The arrangement, however, assumes that people afoot will treat motor traffic fairly and not turn the light against approaching cars just for the fun of it. It may take time to learn that.

FARM FORESTRY

THE National Grange wants more trees.
At its recent 71st annual convention special consideration was given conservation of the nation's forests, soil, watersheds and wild life. Particular emphasis was put on a proposal for voluntary leasing arrangements between private landowners and the Department of Agriculture, whereby lands not suited to cultivation would be used for timber production.
They discussed also a permanent Prairie States forestry project and speedier conversion of submarginal farm lands into state or national forests.

Farmers whose forebears cut down the forests to make way for cultivation have been slow to give up the idea that the trees were a menace or a handicap to agricultural prosperity. Drought and dust storms and terrific waste of unchecked soil erosion have turned their attention back to the forests, for protection and income.

Uncle Sam is nearing his debt limit, and most of his nephews are already beyond it.

Sure, we're all patriots, busy saving the nation from each other.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN,

MCNUTT COURTS TRUSTERS

WASHINGTON—Most stupendous cocktail party ever held in Washington was staged by Paul McNutt, then the newly appointed High Commissioner to the Philippines, and would-be President of the United States. That cocktail party was the most daring piece of political showmanship ever staged in Washington and now, two years later, long-headed political strategists still are debating the wisdom of it.

Whether wise or not, all agree that the strategy of Paul McNutt today has changed. Furthermore, all agree that he-of-the-platinum-hair has made more progress toward the Democratic nomination than any other candidate in the stable.

McNutt's strategy today is subtle, steady and successful. In the first place, he has been doing a good job as Federal Security Administrator. Second, he has visited with small groups of key political leaders in important States. Finally, he has made a strong bid for the inner New Deal circle.

This last move is especially significant. When first appointed Security Administrator, the Brain Trusters were openly hostile toward McNutt. Now they are thawing out.

In fact, some of his speeches have all the earmarks of being inspired, if not actually written by potent New Deal advisers. Obviously they are written with the idea of laying low the previous reputation that McNutt was conservative and dictatorial.

NOTE—A recent McNutt speech before the Washington unit of the National Lawyers' Guild was a ringing defense of civil liberties.

WENDELL WILLKIE

But while McNutt has been busy courting New Dealers, he hasn't neglected the other side of the political fence. One of his strong supporters is Wendell Willkie, head of Commonwealth and Southern, and the No. 1 foe of Rooseveltian power policies.

Willkie was a classmate of McNutt's at Indiana University, and they have been close friends for years. Neither, however, is advertising the fact that McNutt has Willkie's backing. When the two men were in Cleveland on the same day last week, newspapers playfully speculated that Willkie might run for President himself.

Asked what he thought of General Johnson's nomination of Willkie for President, Willkie replied: "It's the best offer I've had yet."

"TELL BILL GOODBYE"

By Marie Blizard

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:
FABIENNE SEYMOUR, rich, young and beautiful.
NICKY BARTLETT, wealthy and in love with Fabienne.
ELLEN CHAPMAN, young and capable mistress of Willoughby house.
DR. BILL MALLORY, close friend of Ellen.

YESTERDAY: Attracted by Bill Mallory, but afraid of hurting Ellen, Fabienne suddenly left the Willoughby house after three months, having won her bet with Nicky.

CHAPTER TEN

GERTRUDE, Comtesse de Ligne, maintained a nine-room apartment in New York and a small house in Paris, both rather handsome menages. But it was Willoughby hall, old and white and gracious as the beauty of the belle who had come to it as a bride, nestling in a Maryland valley twenty miles from Baltimore, that was home to Gertrude's daughter, Fabienne Seymour.

It had not always been known as Willoughby hall. It was Carl Seymour who had left it to Mark and Edna Willoughby—having nothing else to leave to his brother and sister-in-law who had been father and mother to his children after his divorce from Gertrude Willoughby, who had cared less for her children than the glitter of European society.
It was his one gesture to leave the security of a home to his children.

Richard Seymour had built it for his bride, lovely, spirited Fabienne de Courcy, who came from France to attend a ball in New Orleans and never returned to her native land. They had met and married a decade before the Civil war. None of her dark beauty, but all of her love for the hall, and her spirit, had left to find its clear trace in her granddaughter.

The room that had been Fabienne's since she could remember had been the bridal chamber of that first Fabienne. Its walls were hung with the now-faded hand-woven silks that had been brought from France. The painted fire screen, the long oval mirror, the flowered carpet and the spindle-legged chairs that once had served Fabienne de Courcy, were tributes to her grace and femininity.

Lying on the big bed with its headboard of tufted satin, Fabienne Seymour, on that first morning of her return to Maryland, let her eyes sweep lazily over the room and was aware for the first time that it no longer seemed like HER room.
It was the room of another woman—
a belle. But was not she, Fabienne?

She arrived at dinner time the evening before and already the invitations had come by telephone and messenger.
"Yes, yes," she had said to them all. The invitation to the Hunt ball, the Bachelor's dance, the Hollowell and Jackson parties.
"Well, I'd love to!" To ride with Tom and Jane and Nicky; to tea with young masters at the school that Uncle Mark headed.

She was, and she intended to continue, being a belle. Those three months of service in New York would mean nothing to her. No more than they should mean. She'd done it merely to prove to herself that she could. She'd done it and now she would go back to being what she really was. True, she was no longer a rich girl who could send her bills to her great grandfather.
But she had enough money to live pleasantly. She'd always have this home with Uncle Mark and Aunt Edna. Gertrude would finance a trip to Europe if she wanted one.
And when she wished to marry,
there was Nicky waiting for her.
And days of grace and comfortable living.

There was a silver cord that hung beside the tufted satin bed. A touch of her hand would summon old Molly. But the habit formed during three months of routine, eating breakfast when she was dressed, with an eye on the clock, was upon her; she threw back the soft blankets and ran into her bath.

She brushed her silken hair, powdered her nose and hastily applied a scarlet lipstick. Haste. She had no time to waste now. It was not yet nine o'clock, and she had nothing to do on schedule for the rest of her life. It was a strange feeling that she experienced, being used by now to crowded hours.

Her trunks were not unpacked.
Molly would do that later. She hurried about in the closet and found an old pair of jodhpurs, boots and a riding jacket. There were some silk shirts in the highboy drawers.

She dressed hastily, feeling a longing to ride, feeling her first sense of anticipation in weeks.

Mark and Edna were breakfasting before the fire in the library.

"Well!" They greeted her with smiles, surprised.

"Hello, darling," she said. "Any breakfast for me?"

"We thought you'd have it in bed, dear," Aunt Edna said. "You look as if you needed a rest . . .
Hector! Breakfast for Miss Fa-bienne."

Hector brought in a tray of dishes—hot breads and eggs scrambled with chicken livers, a steaming pot of bubbling chocolate.

He put a fresh log on the fire and dropped a cushion in back of Fabienne, who had drawn a big chair up to the table.

In the hall, the grandfather's clock chimed ten musical bells.

Fabienne sipped her chocolate and waited for the bell. The headlines of the newspaper Mark had placed before her. Bright, hungry eyes in little wan or swarthy faces. Bright little smiles as those faces turned to her each morning when she poured hot coco into thick mugs.

The ten o'clock morning lunch at the settlement house. Coco gulped hungrily.
Crackers that disappeared into baby mouths. Always hungry little mouths.

Well, she wouldn't have to think of that any more. That was the way the world was. Always filled with hungry little children. And there were always people to feed them. Fabienne Seymour wasn't needed. That was over and there was something else for her to do.

"Riding this morning?" her uncle asked her.

"Trading," she said. "Hoss-tradin'."

"On Sunday?" Edna asked gently.

"Not exactly trading, darling.
Collecting a bet. From Nicky. His mare Betsy is mine now." She told them about the bet she'd made with Nicky that September morning.

"I wouldn't take Betsy, Fa-

(To Be Continued)

She scaled the hurdle fences as easily as a slim-legged boy.

Edna's superstitious. She thinks you know best."

"Edna's superstitious," Mark said, with an affectionate glance for his wife. "She thinks that good should be done for goodness' sake alone."

"That's because she is good," Fabienne told him. "But I'm not good.
I'm one of the selfish girls. Hard, that's me. Out for what does the most for Fabienne. Now I've got to waste this beautiful morning. I'll see you some time this afternoon. I'm lunching with the Jacksons."

Her trunk was not unpacked.
Molly would do that later. She hurried about in the closet and found
an old pair of jodhpurs, boots
and a riding jacket. There were some silk shirts in the highboy
drawers.

She dressed hastily, feeling a

Statistics Prove Ohio Team Best In League

By Paul R. Allerup

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—Any doubt that Ohio State's Buckeyes earned their 1939 Big Ten football championships appears to be fairly conclusively dispelled today by the final team statistics of the conference.

The Buckeyes, who won the title with five victories against one defeat, have come in for some criticism for assertedly backing into the championship by losing their windup game to Michigan Saturday, but there is little room for criticism of the Bucks in the season's figures.

Ohio State led in the team scoring with 156 points in first downs with 76, in net gain from scrimmage with an average of 291 yards a game, and held a defensive margin in all departments.

The Buckeyes played six games, however, to Michigan's five, and the Wolverines with a total of 147 points led in the scoring averages with 29.4 points per game against Ohio's 26.

Minnesota, although finishing near the conference cellar, was the circuit's strongest rushing team, averaging 241 yards a game by running as compared to Ohio's 218 yards.

Indiana was the conference's best passing eleven, gaining 663 yards in five games against Iowa's 602 yards in six games.

Best Defensively

Defensively, the Buckeyes held their opponents to an average of 150 yards per game, bettering Northwestern's 175-yard average. And in rushing defense the Bucks were far in the van with an average of 101 yards. Ohio also was best in pass defense, limiting the opposition to 332 yards, a breath ahead of Northwestern with 334. The champion Buckeyes also were the best punters of the conference, averaging 42.2 yards in this department, with Illinois the runner-up with an average of 40.6 yards.

Ohio was the most slippery fingered team, fumbling 24 times and losing the ball on fumbles eleven times. Illinois was the most alert eleven on fumbles, recovering the ball on 16 occasions.

Tommy Harmon, who wound up the year as the Big Ten's high scorer with a total of 61 points, placed Michigan in the van with Ohio for conversions. The Wolverines followed up 21 touchdowns with 18 conversions, while Ohio kicked the extra point 18 times after 22 touchdowns. Don Scott, Ohio quarter, matched Harmon's record of 10 points after touchdowns.

Clawson Second

Don Clawson, Northwestern's fine sophomore fullback, followed Harmon in the individual scoring with 33 points, and Ohio's Scott was third with 28 points. Four other players followed with 24 points each. They were Langhurst, Ohio, B. Smith, Minnesota, Jimmy Smith, Illinois, and Erwin Prasse, end and captain of Iowa, runner-up in the standings to Ohio.

The conference elevens proved themselves not strong on field goals, kicking only seven in 27 games. Ohio made good with two three-pointers, while Michigan, Purdue, Illinois, Minnesota and Indiana came through with one each.

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—Any doubt that Ohio State's Buckeyes earned their 1939 Big Ten football championships appears to be fairly conclusively dispelled today by the final team statistics of the conference.

The Buckeyes, who won the title with five victories against one defeat, have come in for some criticism for assertedly packing into the championship by losing their windup game to Michigan Saturday, but there is little room for criticism of the Bucks in the season's figures.

Ohio State led in the team scoring with 156 points, in first downs with 76, in net gain from scrimmage with an average of 291 yards a game, and held a defensive margin in all departments.

The Buckeyes played six games, however, to Michigan's five, and the Wolverines with a total of 147 points led in the scoring averages with 29.4 points per game against Ohio's 26.

Minnesota, although finishing near the conference cellar, was the circuit's strongest rushing team, averaging 241 yards a game by running as compared to Ohio's 218 yards.

Indiana was the conference's best passing eleven, gaining 663 yards in five games against Iowa's 602 yards in six games.

Best Defensively

Defensively, the Buckeyes held their opponents to an average of 150 yards per game, bettering Northwestern's 175-yard average. And in rushing defense the Bucks were far in the van with an average of 101 yards. Ohio also was

Kiwanis Speaker Shows Films, Talks of Arabs

"It takes several weeks to learn to use the throttle and speed control on a camel," Clarence W. Sorensen, news commentator and photographer, said Monday night in the second of this year's Festival Series presented by the Kiwanis Club to raise funds for the summer health camp. The programs are presented in the high school auditorium.

The speaker explained that camels have an unusual walk that sways the rider from one side to another giving the results of seasickness.

"The more you push your knees against the camel to stay on the faster he goes," Sorensen said. "You push harder as you become more ill so there is no end to the experience." The camel, he explained, is not guided with a bridle but with a short stick.

Sorensen displayed some articles of Arab clothing and explained the advantages of its use in the sandstorms. He explained that in purchasing articles in Arabia the merchants have no price tags. "You have to make a deal for everything you purchase," he said.

NO MOVE TAKEN TO BUY TRUCK TO FIGHT FIRES

No action was taken by county commissioners Monday on the cooperative program for a fire truck to be used in the rural districts.

Commissioners explained Monday afternoon that they had expected either Fire Chief Palmer Wise or the representative of a fire truck company to confer with them concerning the program to outline what steps are to be taken by the board.

The fire truck for use in the rural districts would be kept in the Circleville fire department and could be used on serious city fires. Council at its last meeting requested legislation to participate in the program and furnish a fireman to operate the truck on rural runs. No meeting has been held since the legislation was requested.

After making some brief remarks about the Arabs, Sorensen showed motion pictures and colored slides of a trip through Arabia. By camel and car he followed the caravan trails of Arabia during five and a half months for a total of some 2,000 miles.

Colored pictures were shown of the ancient city of Petra and its wonderful works of art. Other highlights of the pictures included a royal wedding in Arabia and a camel feast for 20,000 Arabs. Mr. Sorensen was introduced by Virgil Cross.

The third feature of the Festival series will be the Di Crosta-Ferrari Company, in a program called "Musical Moments" to be presented next Monday night.
